A CORPORATION with a capital of $100,. 000 has been formed for the purpose, as the announcement reads, of publishing a high class magazine for young people, to be called Santa Claus. A little of the high class should have been infused into the selection of a name for the proposed publication, for Santa Claus is so palpable an imitation of Saint Nicholas that people will inevitably suspect that the publishers of the periodical first named had some notion of profiting by the well:earned reputation of the older one.

DELEGATES NOMINATED.

14 and 15 made their nominations yesterday. The nominees are all well known in Helena, and stand well with the community. Messrs. Toole and Maginnis need no introduction to citizens of Montana, whom they have served as delegates in congress. There should be no doubt of the election of both, to represent District No. 14. Messrs. Turner and Muth, of District No. 13, are highly esteemed, the first as a lawyer and the second as a business man who has been identified with many of the best enterdelegates in congress. There should be prises of Helena. Messrs. Neill and Burnes, of District No. 15, are business men of excellent reputation, the first a resident of the city of Helena and the latter of East Helena. Messrs. Maygar and Ford, of District No. 12, should poll and Ford, of District No. 12, should poll the full strength of the party. Taken one with another, the democratic nom- blood; therefore, external treatment affords inees will compare to advantage with no permanent relief. To eliminate the poi those of the republicans. There are no son and make a thorough cure of the disvery wealthy men among the democratic candidates, but all are substantial citizens, who have every incentive to work in the convention for the adoption of a good constitution.

The mode of voting for delegates has been several times explained in these columns, and the letter from Attorney-General Clayberg, published in yesterday's issue, went into the subject in such detail that no one should have any diffidetail that no one should have any difficulty in understanding it. In brief, each citizen may vote for two persons for delegates to the convention, the three persons in the district having the highest number of votes to be elected. The territory is divided into twenty-five districts, from each of which three delegates are to be chosen, and the membership of the convention, consequently, will number seventy-five.

This was finally a ished amid a crashing of glass and c ery, which evinced the fail of many a luctant individual, until, at last, the poli by dint of pushing and rough handli ejected the last brawler and locked I then turned my attention to the me

I then turned my attention to the men cloak rooms, where a scarcely less di graceful scene was being enacted. A lin was formed extending across the corrido but very slow progress was made, and it antics and remarks of the fugitives fro the supper roomfprovoked many quarrei. Decent men got disgusted, but they had wait for over an hour before they coureach the cloak room. Several articles clothing were missing, and an unluch newspaper man who had left his appar in the press room had to depart withous overcoat which some lightingered visitor had appropriate. The scene in the ball-room was not erfying as the hours went on. Women we dancing there, and were even seated some of the boxes, who were evidently, say the least, affected by their visits to the supper room, and one rather pretty girlecited comment by her obvious lack steadiness, while her escort was the suject of considerable indignation as strolled across the floor at the conclusion a dance with his arm still around her wait the strains of "Home Sweet Home" effect ually cleared the ball-room at a few mit utes past 3 o'clock, but half an hour lat the stairs from the corridors were occupic

I was told that tickets were offered for sale on the street at fifty cents a piece. It was said that some of the doorkeepers had sold that some of the doorkeepers had sold tickets received earlier in the evening to speculators, who sold them outside for what they could get. This, if true, would account for the appearance of many disreputable women and curious looking men at tired in ordinary street garb; but it was not these people who originated the scenes in the supper room, although they may have joined in them.

A last disgraceful feature of the affair was the way in which the floral decorations were stolen. Huge bunches of flowers were stolen. Huge bunches of flower were plucked by guests—among who were ladies in decollete toilets—and by t
